WALL STREET.

MONDAY, Jan. 30.

Union Pacific was the feature of Stock Exchange trading and Northern Securities the dominant topic of the day. Either Wall Street or the market was a seer of exceptional accuracy or there is a leak in the ante-room of the United States Supreme Court. The tip that Harriman's application for a review of the Northern Securities case by the United States Supreme Court would be granted was circulated early in the day by brokers who have been most closely identified with the recent activity in Union Pacific shares.

The decision favoring Harriman was handed down in Washington soon after 12 o'clock noon, but throughout the two hours of the forenoon trading Union Pacific and Northern Pacific shares were sold eagerly on the assumption that the Supreme Court would grant the Harriman application for a writ of certiorari nullifying for the time being the favorable decision given to the Hill party by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

The current belief in Wall Street for several days past has been that the United States Supreme Court would decline to review the finding of the Circuit Court of Appeals in the Northern Securities matter, thereby permitting an immediate distribution of the assets of the big holding company, according to the plan formulated by President James J. Hill and his associate directors. Large blocks of Union Pacific and considerable quantities of other stocks, including Northern Securities, were bought by the Hill following, in expectation that a general rise in the market would result from a final settlement of this long-protracted Northern Securities litigation.

A point drop in the price of Northern Securities on the curb early to-day was the first indication that the rank and file of the Hill party received that things were not so rosy for their side. Union Pacific opened strong, but the disposition to sell caused a speedy dip in the price, and although there was evidence of a conservative support from inside sources, the quotation dropped 2 points before it was checked. More than 100,000 shares of Union Pacific were sold before the Northern Securities decision was made public. Much of this Union Pacific stock came out through brokers who have been buying for the Hill followers for two weeks or more and there is no doubt that a large proportion of these shares sold to-day netted the sellers a good profit.

One broker who disposed of 2,000 shares of Union Pacific to-day let nearly every share of it was bought for a slight advance at less than 10. A slight weakness was shown in the general market immediately after the announcement of the action of the Supreme Court in the Northern Securities dispute. The uncertainty over the stock market for many months, and disappointment was freely expressed on the floor of the Stock Exchange that the promise of a decision in favor of the Hill party had been deferred.

Union Pacific shares, however, developed additional strength on the curb, in spite of the bearish talk, and Mr. Harriman let it be known that he had no intention of postponing the litigation beyond the period necessary to secure an adjudication from the court of last resort of the points at issue in the Northern Securities dispute. The lawyers on both sides are said to be ready to go on with their arguments just as soon as the United States Supreme Court will hear them. Northern Securities rallied on the curb before the close.

Significance was attached to the strength of the Vanderbilt shares to-day because of the reported prospective alliance between the Union Pacific, Chicago and Northwestern and the New York Central. The buying of Chicago and Northwestern was largely for account of Western capitalists who are already heavily interested in this property. The Marshall Field, Henry Phipps and Armour holdings in Northwestern are now believed to exceed the combined holdings of the Union Pacific. Heavy foreign buying of Union Pacific attracted some attention and curiosity until it was noted that the buying was largely to cover shorts. There have been a large number of privileges on Erie sold in London recently.

BEEF TRUST IS ILLEGAL, SAYS HIGHEST COURT

Crushing Blow Given by Nation's Supreme Tribunal.

NO JUDGE DISSENTS.

Decision Calls Combine a Conspiracy Among Packers to Fix Prices of Meat.

DECISION SHOWS WAY TO CURB ALL CORPORATIONS.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Judge Grosscup, of the United States Circuit Court, whose decision declaring the MEAT TRUST unlawful was to-day upheld by the United States Supreme Court, made this comment: "The decision establishes the right of the Government to prevent combinations among the manufacturers of meats. It forbids the Sherman act. It is a long step in the direction of effective Government supervision. But to my mind the real significance of the decision is much deeper and more far-reaching even than this. 'It effectively clears the decks for what I believe will be the next really great national move—namely, the abolition of slavery was the last great fundamental movement of the nation itself of the great corporations of the future, a movement whose chief object will be not so much to control prices, or to control power, as to bring CORPORATE OWNERSHIP WITHIN THE REACH AND REASONABLE CONSIDERATION OF THE PEOPLE AT LARGE, and thus to reestablish and republish the industrial ownership of the country.'"

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The Supreme Court of the United States to-day decided the case of the United States vs. Swift & Co., known as the Beef Trust case, charging conspiracy among the packers to fix prices on fresh meats. The opinion was handed down by Justice Holmes, and affirmed the decision of the court below, which was against the packers.

GOING TO THE RACES AT HOT SPRINGS.

Charles Fox

Whitey Langdon

This is how they go to the races in Hot Springs. Horses of all sorts are plentiful, from the donkey to the thoroughbred, and some afternoons as many as two hundred horses may be found tied to the fence rails outside the race course. Charles Fox, owner of Go Between, winner of the Washington Cup at Benning last fall, and Whitey Langdon, a well-known player on the Eastern tracks, are shown in the above picture as they ride to the races.
